The Fire Marshal

About the Course

The Fire Marshal course is designed specifically for those who have responsibility for fire safety in the workplace. This course will introduce you to the work of the fire marshal, covering their roles and responsibilities in the hospitality sector. The course will also explore the main causes of fire, fire safety legislation and guide you through how to conduct a thorough risk assessment.

By the end of the training you should feel confident with the risk assessment process, be able to confidently and competently evaluate your place of work and identify best practice for fire prevention. You should also be able to demonstrate familiarity with the different types of firefighting equipment and what you need to do in an emergency.
